

Stone Age Car Jack

Allow me to introduce you to Rocky, the pebble-brained mechanic. He got this bright idea for jacking up his truck after watching a Flintstones marathon one weekend.

How inventive ... piling a bunch of rocks on top of each other to keep his truck suspended in the air. This whole scene is just a nasty lesson in gravity waiting to happen. It must take a primitive, almost caveman-like courage to sit where he's workin'. Although now that I think about it, I'm not sure even a caveman would be dumb enough to take his chances under this setup.

Don't get me wrong ... I'm not sayin' this guy is dumber than a caveman. Oh no ... in fact, I'm sure this guy would look brilliant if you stood him up next to a slobbering Neanderthal. I'm just saying that his creative, problem-solving abilities need to be harnessed. He needs guidance. Someone needs to lecture him on a better way to do this job and explain the consequences of what he's doing.

Nothin' fancy. I'm thinkin' something along these lines: "Get some real jack stands, pal, before you kill yourself!" Yeah, that'll work.

www.safetycenter.navy.mil